Three injured in Boone Road crash

Meth ingredients found

By AMBER COULTER
acoulter@thenewsenterprise.com

Three people were critically injured and a mobile methamphetamine lab was discovered Tuesday after a red 1991 Honda Accord collided with a tree off Boone Road north of Elizabethtown.

The vehicle was northbound on Boone Road when it left the road for unknown reasons and struck a tree on the right shoulder.

A geyser in water rates

Elizabethtown City Council mulls sizeable price increases

By MARTY FINLEY
mfinley@thenewsenterprise.com

With new wastewater projects on tap and water and sewer cash reserves dwindling, Elizabethtown City Council will be forced to consider sizeable rate increases this year.

HDR Engineers presented water and sewer rate studies Monday during the council's work session. The firm recommended a 60 percent increase in water rates and a roughly 83 percent increase in sewer rates.

For years, Elizabethtown has held rates lower than most cities in the state. Council members have not voted on a sewer rate increase in 20 years. Water rates have been increased twice — once in 2003 and

John Hardin High School seniors look through the eyes of intoxicated motorists

By KELLY CANTRALL
kcantrall@thenewsenterprise.com

John Hardin High School staff let a few obstacles get in the way of seniors Tuesday to help them avoid larger barriers in life.

The senior class participated in an obstacle course that simulated a drunken-driving experience as a way to show students the difficulties and dangers of impaired driving.

The school has offered the obstacle course the past several years with Radcliff Police Department providing equipment for the past three years, said Peggy Snow, coordinator of the Youth Services Center.

Students were asked to weave around a course lined with orange traffic cones in a golf cart while wearing goggles that affected their vision. It was clear from watching the students' slow speed and the number of cones temporarily flattened by their tires that the exercise was not easy.

Anthony Moore said the goggles make everything appear slightly sideways. After removing the goggles, he realized the cones were in different locations than he had

Gov. Steve Beshear has announced that flags should be lowered to half-staff from sunrise to sunset today in honor of Cpl. Aaron M. Faust of Louisville, attached to Camp Lejeune, N.C.

LOOKING BACK

ON THIS DATE IN 1507, a world map produced by German cartographer Martin Waldseemüller contained the first recorded use of the term "America," in honor of Italian navigator Amerigo Vespucci.

IN HARDIN COUNTY 30 YEARS AGO, the Radcliff Woman's Club heard the history of Radcliff at a meeting. Dr. Marion T. Logsdon spoke, giving the history of the town beginning in 1810. It started as the village of Stithton and later was named for a Maj. Radcliffe of Fort Knox. Radcliff officially was incorporated in 1956.

20 YEARS AGO, Ray Story, deputy superintendent for Hardin County Schools, called for the county and city school districts to be merged and for the Elizabethtown superintendent to run it. He asked that the Hardin County Board of Education put on hold a decision to hire a new superintendent and full consideration be given to naming the Elizabethtown superintendent as the superintendent of the merged districts.

E'town police considering canine unit

Louisville Metro would provide dog, training at no charge

By MARTY FINLEY
mfinley@thenewsenterprise.com

The Elizabethtown Police Department soon may have a four-legged ally in its battle to sift out drugs.

EPD Police Chief Tracy Schiller proposed creation of a canine unit in the department to assist in drug enforcement.

Schiller said the program's benefits include access to an effective tracking asset because of a dog's extraordinary sense of smell, which can help locate drugs or missing persons, Schiller added.

Hardin County Sheriff Charlie Williams said his office has had two canines in the past that were beneficial in drug seizures and search and rescue situations.

Williams recalled one situation in which a dog and its handler were able to locate a missing person who suffered from Alzheimer's.

"That one instance made it all worthwhile for us," Williams said. "But it is a monumental undertaking for any department to take on and I applaud Tracy for doing it."

Williams said his office phased out its canine program after partnering with Nelson County for use of a dog. Williams said the first dog retired with its handler and the second dog died suddenly.

Schiller has been working with Louisville Metro Police Department on the project. He said Monday the partnership should drastically reduce startup costs if the city pursues the idea. A dog alone can cost $10,000 and training, equipment and kennels can push costs to around $43,000, Schiller said.

Schiller said LMPD would give EPD a dog at no charge. LMPD plans to retire the dog in mind but it still has around three service years left. LMPD also would offer access to a training academy and a mobile kennel insert for a patrol car at no charge, which would reduce costs further, Schiller said.

Asked if LMPD is looking for something in return, Schiller said EPD would be making no commitments.

"The way they see it, we are all trying to accomplish the same tasks," he said.

Schiller said the city would need to purchase some equipment and a kennel to be installed at a handler's home, but the city could modify a vehicle to accommodate the dog. There also is the option of purchasing a kennel for the department, but he did not recommend the city make the purchase at this time.

In total, he estimated the city could launch the program for $2,000 or less and annual costs for veterinarian services, training and food would be around $2,000. Schiller said local businesses offer grants the city may pursue to offset the cost further.

Lt. Danny Assef of the LMPD canine unit said the department's dogs are dual-purpose, trained for patrol and drug enforcement. Once a dog ages, he said, the intensive training for patrol takes a toll on their bodies, which forces retirement. In those cases, the dog stays with its handler or the department finds the dog a suitable home with another department that can use it for drug seizures.

The department has given canines to law enforcement agencies in La Grange and Harrison County, Ind., Assef said, but said the agency must file a formal request for the dog with LMPD.

Assef said the canine unit has been a valuable asset for LMPD because it provides another layer of protection for officers when dealing with dangerous situations. Dogs also are trained to ferret out drugs strategically hidden from police.

"(Drug dealers) know the better they conceal it the better chance they have of getting from point A to point B," he said.

Because the dog is older, Schiller reiterated EPD only would use it for drug seizures and enforcement.

A number of competent officers stepped forward and expressed interest in becoming handlers, he added, and the three years would give the department and the city time to assess the program and determine if it is an endeavor worthy of more time and effort.

Schiller also said EPD would be one of the only agencies in the county outside of Kentucky State Police with a canine. The city could implement a policy regulating the use of the dog by other agencies.

Former lawn care operator, BBB 'Bad Guy', sentenced to seven years in prison

By SARAH BENNETT
sbennett@thenewsenterprise.com

Donald Simoneit Jr., former owner of Hardin County Lawn Care and one of the Better Business Bureau's "Bad Guys 2011," was sentenced Tuesday to seven years in prison in Hardin Circuit Court.

Simoneit, 44, was the subject of three circuit court cases, all of which were related to his lawn care service. In March, he pleaded guilty to five counts of theft-related felony charges and an amended charge of second-degree persistent felony offender.

On Tuesday, Judge Ken Howard sentenced the Cecilia resident to seven years for each felony charge. All are to be served concurrently for a total of seven years.

However, Howard said the sentence would run consecutive with any other sentence in this or any other jurisdiction. Court records indicate Simoneit has pending felony cases in Madison and Breckinridge counties.

The Commonwealth's Attorney Office still is determining restitution in the case. Howard said Simoneit will be required to make a payment in each of the three cases.

Before completing the sentencing hearing, the judge commented on Simoneit's five prior felony convictions and criminal history that exceeds 10 pages. Most of the offenses are theft-related misdemeanors.

Simoneit was accused of charging customers in advance for lawn care but failing to complete the work after accepting payment.

An indictment returned in December alleged Simoneit took more than $10,000 from one customer that was intended to be used to construct a retaining wall and ground cover. Instead, the business owner "dealt with the money as his own and failed to make required payments or disposition of money," the court document says.

According to the BBB, Simoneit was listed as No. 6 on its "Bad Guys 2011" list because of the volume of consumer complaints returned against his business.

HARDIN COUNTY

Attorney requests trial date change in Ferguson case

The public defender representing Kelly C. Ferguson, an Elizabethtown man accused of forcible rape, requested a trial date change Tuesday in Hardin Circuit Court.

The jury trial is scheduled to begin June 11, but defense counsel Carolyn Brown is attached to another case also scheduled for trial that day.

Circuit Judge Ken Howard decided to continue the motion until a May 25 suppression hearing.

Ferguson, 35, a registered sex offender, faces new charges of first-degree rape, sodomy and persistent felony offender.

The Rev. Willie Jones

The Rev. Willie Jones went to be with the Lord on Thursday, April 19, 2012.

The Rev. Jones was born in Buck Crossing, Ala., on Aug. 8, 1921, and was a longtime resident of Louisville, where he was employed with L&N Railroad-Seaboard System for approximately 37 years until his eventual retirement in 1983. He served as pastor at Lifeline Temple Church of God in Christ in Elizabethtown and House of Refuge Church of God in Christ in Bowling Green. He pastored both congregations simultaneously for approximately 28 years, which concluded in April 2007. During his tenure, both congregations flourished abundantly under his administration. He was very active in the local community through his ministries, spending countless hours preaching the Gospel and counseling many throughout both cities. He received an Honorable Kentucky Colonel in June of 1996 and was a World War II veteran. He spent the majority of his leisure when possible hunting, gardening and fishing. The Rev. Jones established an additional ministry in July 2007 as senior pastor of the New Life Tabernacle Church of God in Christ in Radcliff. He will be greatly missed by many former and current church members, neighbors, well wishers and friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Jim and Florence Jones; six brothers, Arthur Jones, James Jones, Woodrow Jones, Curtis Jones, Luther Jones and Ezel Jones; and three sisters, Estelle Jones-Franklin, Lucille Jones-Morris and Alice Jones-Seal.

He leaves to cherish and celebrate his life, his dedicated and loving companion of 55 years, the Mother Bernice Young-Jones; his 10 children, Michael (Teressa) Jones of Hardinsburg, Sharon Jones-(UpShaw) Briggs of Vine Grove, Ivy Jones-Moore of Rock Hill, S.C., Cedric (Pancy) Jones of Cecilia, Andrea Jones-(Carl) Singleton of Chesterfield, Va., Alan (Emma) Jones of Louisville, Michelle Jones-(Thomas) Johnson of Elizabethtown, Robert Jones of Atlanta, Berniece Jones-(Marc) Nyarko of Elizabethtown and Christina Jones of Rineyville; 23 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; his sole surviving sister, Ruth Jones-(Lorenzo) Ash of Mobile, Ala.; as well as a whole host of nieces, nephews and four brothers-in-law.

His life will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Friday, April 27, at Stithon Baptist Church in Radcliff. The Elder Edmond Bruton will eulogize. Interment with military honors is at 11 a.m. Monday in Kentucky Veterans Cemetery-Central in Radcliff.

Deputy, trooper crash while pursuing speeder

Both officers injured in collision on U.S. 31E

The News-Enterprise

A state trooper and a Nelson County sheriff's deputy, both pursuing the same speeding vehicle, collided Monday afternoon near New Haven.

Trooper C.G. Perry was headed north on U.S. 31E in Nelson County just after 2 p.m. Monday when he clocked a speeder headed in the opposite direction, a Kentucky State Police news release said. Perry pulled off the road and gave chase with sirens and lights engaged.

Nelson County Sheriff's Deputy Michael Clark also was southbound on U.S. 31E and clocked the same vehicle at a high rate of speed, the news release said. The deputy pulled into a driveway in an attempt to turn around and go after the suspect.

According to the KSP statement, Clark did not notice the trooper approaching and backed onto the roadway. Perry was unable to avoid a collision and struck the deputy's cruiser in the passenger side rear.

Perry was transported to Flaget Hospital in Bardstonsville. He suffered a broken hand and will undergo surgery.

Clark sustained injuries to his head and face which will require sutures. He also was treated at Flaget.

The collision occurred approximately 1 mile north of New Haven. The suspect vehicle continued south and did not stop after the collision, KSP reports.

An investigation into the crash is being conducted by KSP Sgt. Mark Giltingham.

Munfordville doctor honored for planting trees

The News-Enterprise

A Munfordville resident is the recipient of a 2012 Arbor Day Award in honor of his contribution to tree planting, conservation and stewardship, the Arbor Day Foundation announced.

Dr. James Middleton is one of 16 individuals and organizations being recognized by the foundation at its annual Arbor Day Awards. The ceremony is Saturday in Nebraska City, Neb.

Middleton will receive the Good Steward Award in recognition of stewardship and conservation on private land. In 2011, the Good Steward Award winner was Charles D. Williams, also of Munfordville.

To date, Middleton has planted more than 750,000 trees on his 3,000-acre property. In addition to their aesthetic contribution, many of the trees reduced soil erosion. As many as 1,500 of Middleton's trees were planted solely to improve water quality.

Middleton also received the 2010 Outstanding Forest Steward Award from the Kentucky Division of Forestry.

Since 1972, the Arbor Day Foundation has recognized the inspiring and life-changing work of leading environmental stewards and tree planters through the annual Arbor Day Awards.

Grand jury returns arson indictment

Felker was in jail on unrelated charges

The News-Enterprise

A 22-year-old Irvington man has been indicted for second-degree arson by a Breckinridge County grand jury.

The indictment was served on Robert J. Felker at the Hardin County Detention Center, where he was being held on unrelated charges, Kentucky State Police reported.

Monday's indictment stems from a Jan. 28 structure fire at 700 Whitworth Lockard Lane in Breckinridge County.

Felker's bond was set at $10,000 cash. The investigation by KSP Arson Detective Terry Scott is ongoing.

Fresh food and fun on displayISSUE: Hardin County Farmers' Market Inc.OUR VIEW: A unique opportunity

The Hardin County Farmers' Market Inc. opened earlier this month, ready to put a personal touch on food shopping.

Setting up a few weeks earlier this year, market members saw a demand for foods that don't depend on the growing season and thought a head start would help build lasting interest in the market.

Located at Leitchfield Road and Peterson Drive in Elizabethtown, the market includes about 30 members, a mix of farmers and gardeners. For now, it's open from 7 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

Vendors started the season with baked goods and eggs. When the time is right, they will man tables and tables full of berries, lettuce, corn, tomatoes, flowers and more, beckoning guests to wander through the goods, taking in the sights and smells of spring and summer.

Farmers markets are a great way to supplement weekly shopping, but picking up fresh foods from a local farmer is much more than grocery shopping. It's an event, rather than an errand. It's like comparing a slow Saturday at a craft festival to a quick stop at a department store.

There's a sense of adventure, it's a hunt, it might turn out to be educational and it certainly can be a social occasion.

"It's just festive," one shopper said at the start of the 2011 season.

Some Hardin County Farmers Market members say the atmosphere is one of the most enjoyable parts of the business. It's meeting new people and old friends, swapping recipes, helping out.

As Mary K. Bangers said of the members, everyone's like family and that's why people keep coming back. She and her husband have been selling food at the market for about five years and the retiree looks forward to greeting shoppers more than making some cash, she said.

And shoppers appreciate knowing who's behind their food, President Brenda Thomas said.

There's merit in buying local, merit in supporting local farmers and, as any health report will tell you, merit in taking more interest in your food, especially the types available at such markets.

Hardin County is fortunate to have access to local produce at several venues throughout the community, including a large, regular farmers market that makes shopping an enjoyable experience.

Endorsing Bryan

Kendrick Bryan is running for state representative and he is offering something we need in Frankfort: the truth.

The first-time candidate is a local teacher and a graduate of Hardin County Schools and Western Kentucky University. Bryan is competing in the Democratic primary.

Bryan, 24, has strong ties to many communities because he attended Sonora Elementary, East Hardin Middle School, Central Hardin High School and WKU-Elizabethtown.

Bryan also displays bold leadership by opposing political action committees and special interest groups. I wish more candidates followed his lead in this effort.

Bryan will fight for education. He is a substitute teacher and he is completing a second degree in school counseling. He has fought in Frankfort for students before, and I know he will fight for students as an elected leader. I also support his promise of sponsoring essay contests and spelling bees.

The candidate is an advocate of transparency, and incumbents can learn from Bryan's platform. Kentucky needs open hearings regarding the budget and redistricting. If reform does not occur, our legislators will continue the costly streak of having special sessions.

The last special session cost more than $300,000. If Frankfort is serious about fiscal restraint, legislators need to follow Bryan's plan. Their way is not working and our officials need to start getting results in general sessions.

All of that money spent on the last special session could go to the creation of jobs here in the great commonwealth of Kentucky.

I also support Bryan because he opposes legislative feuds and rivalries. Kentuckians are suffering, and Bryan understands we need collaboration and civility to create jobs and focus on solutions. Bryan understands that arguing across the isle will not allow Kentucky to take a step forward, and for that he is willing to work with all of his colleagues, in order to make the Bluegrass even greater.

On May 22, your vote can Enhance the Heartland. Vote for Kendrick Bryan.

Support Bryan in May

The Kentucky General Assembly concluded the 2012 general session without solutions to redistricting or budgeting procedures. The group failed to pass a road plan. Gov. Steve Beshear then called for a special session. A new caliber of Representative is needed in Frankfort.

Kendrick Bryan will address these issues, but to do so he needs your support in the Democratic primary on May 22. Bryan is a graduate of Hardin County Schools and Western Kentucky University and is completing a Master's degree at WKU-Elizabethtown. It is through my experiences at WKU I have come to know Kendrick. He is intensely devoted to public service – to this I can attest, given his years of fighting for student issues there and in Frankfort.

The first-time candidate has called for Kentucky to create a nonpartisan redistricting commission to hold public hearings. He feels state budgets should not be discussed and created behind closed doors. The budget funds vital aspects of government and discussion should be encouraged. Bryan is a teacher and an opponent of political action committees and special interest groups. He refuses contributions from the groups and is not competing for their endorsements. Bryan's campaign should be commended for focusing on the is-

Public apologies can't heal all wounds

I sense almost weekly an individual, organization, company or government somewhere in the United States publicly apologizes for doing something wrong.

A few public apologies during just the last two weeks: Democratic strategist Hilary Rosen apologized to Ann Romney for saying she had never "worked a day in her life." Richard Land, a Southern Baptist leader, said he erred in accusing President Barack Obama and other black leaders of exploiting Trayvon Martin's death for political gain. Acura, the luxury carmaker, apologized for seeking a "not too dark" black actor for an ad. And most notably, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta acknowledged to Afghanistan that U.S. soldiers were wrong to have posed in 2010 for photographs with the maimed bodies of dead Afghan insurgents.

BILL

As an undergraduate studying American history, I became interested in the culture of apology, especially public ones to abused and marginalized minority groups. I wondered if we overestimate the power of such mea culpas.

Aaron Lazare, author of "On Apology," defines "apology" as "an encounter between two parties in which one party, the offender, acknowledges responsibility for an offense or grievance and expresses regret or remorse to a second party, the aggrieved. Each party may be a person or a group or a larger group, such as a family, a business, an ethnic group, a race or a nation. The apology may be private or public, written or verbal and even, at times, nonverbal.

President Ronald Reagan signed legislation in 1988 apologizing for the internment of about 120,000 Japanese-Americans following the 1941 Pearl Harbor attack. The legislation said government actions were based on "race prejudice, war hysteria and a failure of political leadership." The government eventually disbursed more than $1.6 billion in reparations to the victims and their heirs.

In 2010, Congress passed a bill apologizing to American Indians. The bill stated in part that the government apologizes "on behalf of the people of the United States to all Native Peoples for the many instances of violence, maltreatment, and neglect inflicted on Native Peoples by the citizens of the United States." The bill also asks Americans "to move toward a brighter future where all the people of this land live reconciled as brothers and sisters, and harmoniously steward and protect this land together."

Several months after Obama became our first black president, Congress grudgingly approved a formal resolution apologizing for the "fundamental injustice, cruelty, brutality and inhumanity of slavery" of black Americans. The legislation also apologized for Jim Crow, the separate-but-equal system that followed emancipation. Unlike the Japanese legislation, the bill for blacks did not include reparations, still a major issue for millions of blacks.

During a White House ceremony in 1997, President Bill Clinton apologized for the government's role in the Tuskegee Syphilis Study. From 1932 to 1972, 399 black sharecroppers in Alabama were denied treatment for syphilis by physicians of the U.S. Public Health Service. With survivors of the study and their families present, Clinton addressed the racial animus and mistrust the experiment caused.

"We can look you in the eye," he said, "and finally say on behalf of the American people, what the United States government did was shameful, and I am sorry."

Just last year, North Carolina apologized for sterilizing an estimated 7,600 young black victims, from 1929 to 1973, who had been deemed "unfit to procreate" by the state's eugenics board.

Have these apologies succeeded?

Lazare writes that "many offenses are experienced as assaults on the offended party's self-respect or dignity, and so a successful apology must somehow restore these vital aspects of the self in order to heal."

Power of friendship can start something

When a child in need is matched with a Big Brother or Big Sister, it doesn't take long to notice the changes: Parents say their children start focusing on school work, they get along better with their siblings and — best of all — they start talking about the future.

I asked a group of parents, "Why? Why do your children respond so quickly and dramatically to this one friend in their life?"

One parent said, "That's easy. They start to feel accountable."

The parents went on to explain that their children might scoot under the radar in a classroom, on a soccer team or in a social group but when the Big Brother or Big Sister is around, the spotlight unavoidably shines on the child. Then something starts.

One Little Brother started wearing his hair like his Big Brother. A Little Sister confidently reported to her BBBS match support specialist that she wants to be an attorney, just like her Big Sister.

The results are even more dramatic when the children get older.

One Little Brother, now in college and on the honor roll, told his Big Brother he intends to major in criminal justice. He knows where he'd be if it weren't for that friend called a "Big Brother." And he wants to do what he can to steer others in the right direction.

That same Little Brother once challenged us with a question. "What would happen to this community if every kid like me had someone like my Big Brother?"

Here's what can happen:

Children who have a Big Brother or Big Sister are more likely to graduate from college than their own parents were to graduate from high school. Think of the thousands who could graduate.

Consider, too, the challenges faced by children of deployed military personnel. They have the added burden of worrying about their parents' well being, wondering when and if they'll return home. Think of the void Big Brothers and Big Sisters can fill — giving peace of mind to our soldiers and providing guidance and opportunity to the children left behind. Children matched with Big Brothers and Big Sisters have far more earning potential than those of a similar demographic who aren't as fortunate. Imagine a dramatically better-educated, higher-earning work force.

Children with Big Brothers and Big Sisters are far more likely to serve their community by volunteering or by joining the military. They become leaders.

So we need not wring our hands, wondering whether we are capable of doing anything to help more children go to college, to help boost our local economy, or to help raise a generation of leaders.

The answer — as one parent so aptly put it — lies in the accountability that starts when one child gains one friend: a Big Brother or Big Sister.

Learn how you can start something: Volunteer, donate, advocate: www.bbbsky.org; www.bowlforkidssake.com or call (502) 587-0494.

sues and opposing negative advertisements in a time of negative politics. Responsible budgeting and bold leadership will help Kentuckians get back to work, and Bryan understands the importance of finding common ground with colleagues. His devotion to Elizabethtown is unwavering; he is committed to enhancing the heartland by sponsoring job fairs and educational opportunities including essay contests, mock elections, slogan competitions and spelling bees.

His campaign also is dedicated to transparency. Bryan is the only candidate calling for the creation of a website to display representatives' voting records, office expenditures, local job postings and a list of office visitors.

IN OTHER VIEWS

The views below are not intended to reflect the views of the editorial board of The News-Enterprise.

Wal-Mart must seek truth

As a lightning rod for criticism, Wal-Mart Stores Inc. should go out of its way to avoid trouble.

Instead, according to The New York Times, the retailing giant suppressed an internal investigation into allegations of bribery by the company in Mexico.

The newspaper reported Wal-Mart's own 2005 investigation unearthed more than $24 million in questionable payments made by the company to facilitate new stores in Mexico, where today one in five Wal-Mart outlets is located.

The money allegedly went for zoning approvals, various permits and to buy off opposition. But when senior management learned of the allegations, the article contends, they squelched the inquiry. Among those reportedly kept informed on the probe: Michael Duke, Wal-Mart's chief executive.

It doesn't matter whether you think Wal-Mart is the driving force behind a race to the bottom on wages and benefits, or a force for good in the lives of lower-income Americans and the Third World workers who make so many of its products. Federal law prohibits bribery by American companies overseas. And there is no justification for corporate lawbreaking, assuming any occurred, just as there is no justification for failing to root out wrongdoing.

Wal-Mart has been in hot water before, but these are potentially criminal matters. In December, the company told the U.S. Department of Justice it had launched a new investigation. The department should do likewise. And Wal-Mart should appoint an experienced outsider of impeccable integrity to get to the bottom of this mess.

Did the company violate the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act by paying bribes south of the border? Was it doing the same elsewhere? If wrongdoing occurred, who knew about it?

The allegations raise disturbing questions about a business patronized by millions of customers. Whatever one's view of Wal-Mart, surely the company and its critics can agree that its executives have to follow the law.

But restoring the self-respect or dignity of the offended party is only the first step. To be totally successful, apologies also must heal the damaged relationships between the aggrieved and the offender.

I do not know any Japanese and do not know how the internment apology affects them. I know that many American Indians dismiss the congressional apology as empty rhetoric. I know, too, that many African-Americans — despite the election of Obama — still feel debased and degraded by the legacy of slavery.

I cannot help but conclude that public apologies, even the sincerest, have not restored the self-respect and dignity of most victims of our atrocities. I am convinced we overestimate the power of such apologies.

Can You Buy A New $1,800 Furnace For $458?

Yes, it's absolutely true, you can actually replace your old (and probably very inefficient) furnace, air conditioner, or heat pump as a package for at least $1,300 less than you would have to pay at any other time.

MY PROBLEM IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Let me explain, At the beginning of every year we purchase, for the summer, a load of air conditioners and heat pumps and have to guess how many we'll need to meet the demand. Of course we're never exactly right. So, we always have some inventory left over until the next summer's cooling season. These are brand new models. And they are NOT seconds or "Blems" or "Builder" models. They are factory fresh PREMIUM air conditioners and heat pumps and have a full parts and labor warranty.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN GET A FURNACE FOR $458

If you buy one of these leftover Premium air conditioners or heat pumps at last year's prices and have it installed by June 1st (but only if one of the sizes I have in inventory will fit your house, of course), I am giving you a high efficiency furnace completely installed, for an unbelievable low price of only $458.

HERE'S HOW

Just call Allen's at 358-3333. We will come out and determine the availability of the proper size. As of right now, I have only 21 air conditioners and heat pumps left over in various sizes and efficiencies. When they are gone this remarkable offer ends. First come, first served! We will show you the real world price of the air conditioner or heat pump that fits your home. Then we will show you the substantial savings now. And it will include all labor, installation materials, and a full parts and labor warranty on your new system. Nothing is left out.

THE CONCEPT IS SIMPLE

By letting you win big now, I will win at the end of the year. I'm betting that if I make you an offer that is "irresistable" (at least it should be if your furnace or air conditioner is over ten years old) I will accomplish three things:

1. Get rid of my leftover air conditioning inventory.
2. Help cover my rent, utilities, insurance and taxes in the slow months.
3. Pay my professional staff of 15 technicians to work instead of paying them to sit home.

If I can accomplish these three objectives, I will minimize my losses, and the rest of the year can be a winner.

NO OBLIGATION

Even after I completely explain the installation there is absolutely no obligation. If you decide you don't want to take advantage of this spectacular savings-that's OK. I will give you a surprise gift worth $50.00 because you are kind enough to read this ad and give me a chance to solve my problem. I want you to think well of Allen's Air Conditioning & Heating even if you don't buy.

YOU CAN BUY WITH NO CASH

You don't even have to pay me right away. I have set up terrific financing with competitive rates. Consider this, if you decide to make monthly investments instead of paying cash, the amount of your investment might be more than offset by the savings on your utility bills. It's like "having your cake and eating it too".

IRONCLAD GUARANTEE

I'm so confident that you will save at least 20% on your cooling and heating bills (I'm projecting more like 30% to 50%) that I will pay you Double the Difference for one year if you don't.

There is no way you can lose. Your lower utility bills will really make a big difference on your investment. And I will even double your savings if you save less than 20%. If these premium systems were not among the best on the market, I couldn't afford to make such a promise.

WHY THIS OFFER CAN'T LAST

You must act before May 31st!

Here's why.

1. I only have a limited number of matched systems left over. When all of the in-stock air conditioners and heat pumps are sold, that's it. First come, first served!
 2. If I have any of the leftover systems on May 31st (although I doubt that I will) this offer still ends.
- My business always starts improving in June and I can sell my leftover air conditioners and heat pumps this coming summer and still come out OK. Give Allen's Air Conditioning & Heating a call now at 358-3333 and set an appointment for your no obligation survey. Thank you for reading this rather long ad. I hope you will profit greatly because of it.

DEAR ABBY

Dear Abby: My father is turning 60 this year, and I want to make him a photo album with pictures from throughout his life. However, Dad is widowed and remarried, so I'm having a hard time deciding what to do with respect to my mother. They were married 25 years before she died, and they loved each other very much. They raised two children together, and she was an important part of his life.

At the same time, I have a feeling that including pictures of Mom may upset my stepmother. While I am not close with her, I don't want to intentionally hurt her feelings. What should I do? — Laura in St. Louis

■ Dear Laura: You're asking an intelligent question and I commend you for your sensitivity. If the photo album is intended to be a surprise for your father, consider talking to your stepmother about the idea. It will give you an indication of how such a gift would be perceived by her.

TRAPPED BY PARENTS MARITAL TROUBLES. Dear Abby: I'm 24 and love my parents. Mom confided to me that she has been seeing a high school flame behind my father's back. She claims she loves this man and said she has slept with him, but she doesn't want to leave the security my father provides for her. She swore me to secrecy about her affair.

Meanwhile, my father has started talking to me about their marital problems. He doesn't understand why Mother isn't happy. I feel like I should tell him, but that would betray my mother. At the same time, not telling him what I know is betraying him. What should I do? — Caught In The Middle

■ Dear Caught In The Middle: Your parents should not be confiding their marital difficulties to you. They should attempt to resolve them by communicating with each other — preferably with the help of a licensed marriage counselor. That your mother would turn you into a co-conspirator in her affair is despicable. Give her a deadline to level with your father or tell her that you will. He deserves to know the truth. ARE KIDS OVERREACTING? Dear Abby: I have fallen in love with a very special woman. She happens to be my daughter-in-law's mother. We are very happy together, but our children are extremely upset about this. My son and her daughter no longer speak to us at this point.

I feel it's my life and I shouldn't live it for the kids, nor would I want them to live their lives for me. Is it wrong for me to be with her, or are the kids overreacting? — In Love in Kentucky

■ Dear In Love: The "kids" are overreacting, and they shouldn't be trying to blackmail the two of you into doing what they prefer. It is your life, and just as you wish your son and daughter-in-law every happiness, they should be doing the same for you. This situation is not as unusual as they think, and they should not be judging or punishing you, because you are doing nothing wrong.

DETERMINE YOUR OWN FEELINGS. Dear Abby: I married "Darrel" six months ago. It bothers me that he wears a silver bracelet from a relationship that ended five years ago. He claims that if I were to wear a piece of jewelry from my first marriage, it wouldn't bother him as it is "just jewelry." How do you feel about this? — Bothered In Daytona Beach

■ Dear Bothered: What I feel about this is not important; it's how you feel. If your husband's wearing the bracelet is a constant, irritating reminder that he was involved with someone else, he should remove it because it isn't "just jewelry" to you. And your feelings should be more important to him than the bracelet, don't you think?

'TWEEN 12 & 20

Telling it like it is

Dr. Wallace: I've been reading your column for quite some time, but I never dreamed that I would ever be writing to you. Actually, I'm addressing my letter to all the teenage girls who read your column. I hope I can spare them the misery I went through concerning sex. When I was 15, all of my girlfriends were sexually active with their boyfriends. Me? I was the lone virgin. Soon they were encouraging me to have sex so I could share in the interesting "group discussions."

I thought I was ready and in love with Ray, so one night I said yes. Well, I found out that Ray did not love me, and soon he was calling me only when he wanted sex. Not only that, he also was telling his friends that I was an "easy" mark and I guess that I was. I had sex with many of his friends. I honestly believed that each guy really liked me and that having sex was a way of showing true affection. How wrong I was!

Luckily, I didn't get pregnant, but now that I'm older, I really feel that I was used and abused sexually. The emotional scars of my sexual awakening will be with me forever. I made a big mistake by having sex. First, I thought "everyone was doing it" and they weren't. Next, I thought that I was physically and emotionally ready and I wasn't.

Girls, I plead with you not to get sexually active because you want to know what sex is all about or you feel you are missing out on something special. Believe me, you are not. The time will come when you are truly in love and mature enough to enter into a relationship. Let's hope it will be after you say, "I do" to your husband. — Nameless, Philadelphia, Pa.

■ Nameless: Your message to teens is loud and clear. Thanks for "telling it like it is."

Strong earnings from AT&T, 3M lift Dow average

By DANIEL WAGNER
AP Business Writer

Muscular U.S. corporate earnings and higher spirits in Europe propelled U.S. stocks higher Tuesday.

Five of the 30 big companies that make up the Dow Jones industrial average rose more than 1.5 percent. AT&T led the gains after reporting better-than-expected profit. Verizon, AT&T's main rival, was close behind. 3M rose sharply after delivering an impressive quarterly report. GE and DuPont rounded out the list of top gainers.

Traders punished Apple after AT&T said it activated far fewer of Apple's iPhones. Apple fell two percent, dragging the Nasdaq composite average to a lower close. Apple shares recovered the day's losses several times over in after-hours trading after the company announced another record quarterly profit that easily beat analysts' forecasts.

Chocolate maker Hershey and regional bank Regions Financial helped boost the Standard & Poor's 500 index after both companies outpaced Wall Street's estimates.

Earnings reports are blowing the tops of analysts' expectations, providing temporary relief for markets roiled by fears about Europe, said Sam Stovall, chief equity strategist with financial-data firm S&P Capital IQ. He said analysts had expected only a half-percent profit increase for the S&P 500 this quarter. Based on the results so far, he said, the gain could be ten times bigger.

"These are legitimately strong results, and in retrospect, the bar was set too low," Stovall said.

The gains for blue chips were broad. Only five Dow components fell, led by Wal-Mart Stores. The world's biggest retailer is reeling from reports over the weekend that top company officials knew about widespread bribery of foreign officials.

U.S. gas prices now cheaper than a year ago

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After dropping for most of the month, gasoline is now cheaper in much of the U.S. than it was a year ago.

That hasn't happened in more than two years, and it could be part of a larger decline in gasoline prices that could lift consumer confidence ahead of the summer driving season.

"Gasoline prices are right in your face," said Fred Roze, retail pricing director at the Oil Price Information Service. "It's something you have to spend money on every week. If prices continue to decline, people will feel better."

Pump prices have dropped by 9 cents a gallon since the first week of April to a national average on Tuesday of $3.85. A year ago, the average price was $3.86 per gallon.

Carol Baldwin's calling

A life of service through benefits counseling, prescription assistance

By ROBERT VILLANUEVA
rvillanueva@
thenewsenterprise.com

Providing assistance to those navigating the labyrinthine health insurance process or to those who need help getting prescription medications, Carol Baldwin derives a great amount of satisfaction from her dual role.

"It's just the most rewarding thing I've ever been involved in," Baldwin said. "Ever."

As the community organizer for the Kentucky Prescription Assistance Program and director for State Health Insurance Program, Baldwin provides free services through Lincoln Trail Area Development District.

Prior to her current role, Baldwin was a caseworker for the state Department for Community Based Services. Baldwin helped clients with food stamps, Medicaid and financial assistance.

"But my heart was always with the seniors," she said.

In 1988, Baldwin retired from her state job and began working for Central Kentucky Community Action Council where she eventually became SHIP director. She took the job with the condition that she could start a prescription assistance program.

"One of the worst things for me is when people fell through the cracks," Baldwin said.

The SHIP program offers free counseling pertaining to access in public and private benefits including Medicare and Medicaid, which can be daunting to most, she said. The SHIP program covers eight counties, and she'll go where needed.

Sandy Huddleston, SHIP coordinator and KPAP patient advocate and counselor, has worked with Baldwin "pretty much since day one," Baldwin said.

Huddleston called Baldwin "a hidden jewel in Hardin County" who has the biggest heart of anyone she has ever met.

"If she can't help someone, she will find someone who can," Huddleston said.

In addition to Huddleston, Baldwin works with 18 trained SHIP volunteers who have various roles.

"I couldn't do without our volunteers," she said.

The other part of her job is with the prescription assistance program, which offers help to those who have problems getting prescription medications they need. Baldwin started the program locally, but it soon grew and got noticed.

About 2008, Baldwin received a call from State Rep. Jimmie Lee, who supported the program and wanted Kentucky to offer it statewide. Not long afterward, a bill was passed and KPAP was established as a state program. Baldwin now is KPAP community organizer for a 40-county area.

Baldwin said the program has come a long way from the days when each patient's forms and files had to be written up individually and information compiled from various drug company websites. These days, a software program incorporates information from participating drug companies and physicians, provide prescription drug information and can automatically populate forms, among other things.

"Kentucky is the only state to have anything this comprehensive," Baldwin said.

KPAP sites can be created at any nonprofit agency, and faith-based organizations and civic groups are good candidates, she said.

"It's only going to cost them a computer, printer and some manpower," Baldwin said.

Volunteers are trained to run the program, and no medications are delivered to the program site.

The program has resulted in more than $5 million in prescription medications provided through a KPAP site at Community Health Clinic of Hardin and LaRue Counties since the program was implemented there in early 2009, Baldwin said. The program is also in place at Helping Hand of Hope.

"We need more sites here," she said. Both the SHIP and KPAP program, Baldwin said, draw older adults and their family members, often in extreme situations.

"If you can imagine needing your medications to live and you just can't get it," she said.

Baldwin has seen cases where one spouse might forego medication so the other can buy theirs. Or sometimes they share a prescription because they can't afford two of them.

Helping older adults with their benefits often translates into savings, she said.

One couple in their 70s received help with their benefits, making them more affordable, and Baldwin could not forget the response. The woman turned to her husband, smiling, and told him, "Honey, we can go to McDonald's again."

Huddleston called it an honor to work beside Baldwin, especially after an exhaustingly long day of training or being at a clinic for the less fortunate.

"We both have smiles on our faces because we know we had a very successful day and helped a lot of folks," Huddleston said.

Baldwin's roles with SHIP and KPAP have involved holding some hands and doing some consoling, she said. And that's fine with her.

"I truly feel I'm doing what I need to be doing," she said.

MOTHERHOOD & MORE

By JAIME THOMAS

Thinking about a third

When I was younger, before I knew the ins and outs and all the weird, difficult things that went along with parenthood, I always said I wanted four children.

I wanted to hear all the laughter and the giggling and I wanted to see a passel of children, my children, riding bikes together or kicking a soccer ball or making mud pies. Apparently, in my mind, kids only existed outside.

My husband, on the other hand, only wanted two kids. We decided to compromise and settled on three.

And then I had one. And it was hard. And then I had another one. And it was like life exploded in an endless time suck of feeding and changing and feeding the other one and making sure everyone has clean clothes and the house is sort-of clean, or at least not gross and then the first one needs to eat again and the other one wants more milk and, "Hey, Mommy. Come play with me because I don't want to play alone."

So now I'm faced with an existential dilemma. I love my kids. I love how silly they are and how creative and how loving. And I could see myself having a lot more of them running around, but in that day-dream they are all at least 5 years old and can wipe their own bottoms.

But then there are hard days, or more accurately, weeks. And I can't see how I can take care of the ones I already have.

Recently this whole parenting thing has been especially hard as my youngest has woken up repeatedly throughout the night, most unhappy. As far as we can tell she's getting molars in. Either that or we're late on her exorcism because, as almost any parent will tell you, sometimes that seems like the only thing that will help keep these little demons from crawling down stairs backwards and spitting food at your face.

So I've been having an internal debate with myself. Do I want another child? Do I want to go through all the discomfort of carrying one, the sleeplessness of the entire first year, the total rearranging of my life again to compensate someone else, be they ever so small and adorable?

Sometimes, when I'm so tired that all I can do is stare at my bed in the hopes that by some miracle I can lie down in it before 10 p.m., the answer is no. No, I do not want to go through that hardship again.

But then my oldest will come up to me when I'm on the ground playing in dirt with him, and put his arm around my neck and say, "I just love you so much, Mommy."

When that happens, the answer is most decidedly yes. Yes, I want another 10 kids just like you, little man.

But, oh, it's so hard to forget the 3-year-old temper that can change so fast I'm left wondering what I did wrong as he runs up to his room and slams the door. It's so hard to forget the endless diaper changes and endless feedings and endless picking up of random crap that some small person has thrown all over the floor, just to see me pick it up.

But then again, my youngest is so affectionate, and will randomly come up to me for a hug, only to squirm to get down when she's gotten it. She likes to make silly faces to make us all laugh. She loves to read books and play ball and run after her brother while he rides his bike.

And he loves to let her chase after him. He loves to dig in the dirt and climb trees and look for rollie pollies under rocks. And they both love hugs and kisses and bedtime stories and puzzles.

They both are such good, polite, considerate kids. They both are helpful and kind and friendly and so, so sweet.

And while my free time is not nearly where I'd like it to be, and while I just found a raisin stuck to my computer desk from who knows when, I think, after all, that my answer is yes.

Yes. One more just like the other two, please.

Only not until the youngest stops throwing all of her food all over the floor because, my goodness, cleaning that up takes a good chunk of my day.

Berry said the county could pull $500,000 from E-911 reserves and take out a $1.5 million loan to cover the remainder of the cost of the center, which the county could finance over a 10-year period for an annual debt payment of about $180,000.

EMS Station No. 4 was projected to cost $500,000 and Berry recommended the county pull the money from board designated fund reserves compiled from Hardin Memorial Hospital dividends. Because the fund is for medical purposes, Berry said using the reserves would be appropriate.

"We have ample reserves to be able to do this," he said.

Berry said the county has not determined a location for the EMS station, but the ideal spot would be southeast of Elizabethtown near the intersection of U.S. 31W and Lincoln Parkway.

Berry said no additional staffing would be required for EMS nor increases in the ambulance fleet to manage the station.

The $500,000 needed for design of a county government center, meanwhile, would be pulled from general reserves. Berry has not proposed construction to begin during the 2012-13 budget cycle.

The roughly $1.5 million pulled from reserves would reduce the county's total reserves from $13.4 million to $11.8 million. Berry said he expects interest earnings to push the reserves back to $12 million by June 2013.

The $30.4 million operations budget will require no reserves to balance and is roughly $633,000 more than last year's $29.7 million plan.

The spending outline includes $15.8 million in anticipated general fund revenues, $13 million of which will be appropriated. The other $2.7 million will be used to help balance the Hardin County Detention Center shortfall, which also will be balanced with $350,000 from the current year board designated fund, according to Berry's proposal.

Berry said the jail budget is only expected to produce about $5.5 million in revenue for the year but $8.3 million in expenses.

The county's road fund is budgeted at $3.2 million. Road projects funded include $890,000 for asphalt resurfacing, $260,000 to replace aging road equipment and vehicles and more than $122,000 for road salt.

The solid waste budget, meanwhile, is projected at $5.7 million under Berry's proposal based on 155,000 tons of waste generated at the Pearl Hollow Landfill. The solid waste budget also will be balanced with $200,000 from carbon credit sales obtained through methane gas collection at the landfill and $100,000 worth of timber sales from the landfill, according to Berry's proposal.

Berry also has proposed an Emergency Medical Services budget of $4.4 million, which includes $115,000 to purchase new ambulances and another $100,000 to maintenance equipment and vehicles.

Berry's budget also provides funding for numerous programs, including more than $900,000 for the county's public library system, about $380,000 for "green" initiatives and $50,000 for the Drug Court program.

Personnel costs, meanwhile, are projected at $12.3 million and include the step-in-grade and a 1 percent cost-of-living increases for employees.

The cost for salaries and benefits has risen each year and is up from $11.8 million last year. Berry said personnel costs makes up about 40 percent of the budget.

Berry's operations budget does not include direct county funding for new infrastructure, new county recreational facilities, new public service initiatives or health insurance for family members of employees.

Berry has proposed Hardin Fiscal Court make amendments and pass a first reading by May 4 so it can schedule a second reading and adoption of the budget for May 22. However, Fiscal Court has until June 30 to approve a budget.

der. None of the car's three occupants were wearing a seatbelt, according to Kentucky State Police.

James Miller, supervisor for Hardin County EMS, said all three occupants were airlifted to University Hospital in Louisville following the collision.

The driver, David L. Stallins II, 26, of Louisville, sustained life-threatening injuries, according to KSP.

The front seat passenger, Matthew S. Stallins, 25, of Louisville, was also seriously injured, according to KSP.

Backseat passenger Jessica L. Fisher, 30, of Louisville, was critically injured, according to KSP.

Detective Rob Green of Greater Hardin County Narcotics Task Force said emergency responders found items associated with meth labs inside and around the car.

Responders approached the vehicle wearing protective masks and carried away full red bags marked as biohazards away from the vehicle after the occupants had been moved.

Charges related to the mobile meth lab are pending and will be handled by the narcotics task force, according to KSP.

were contained in sealed plastic bottles and other sealed plastic containers, and it didn't look like responders were exposed.

There are a lot of factors, such as leaking gas and battery acid, which can affect materials and containers related to meth production. Green warned responders to take whatever precautions called for in the event of possible exposure to substances related to meth production.

Mike Hulsey, chief of the Elizabethtown Fire Department, said crew members who responded

U.S. needs top-level approval to launch cyberattacks

By RICHARD LARDNER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States would use cyber weapons against an adversary's computer networks only after officials at the highest levels of government approved of the operation because of the risks of collateral damage, a senior U.S. military official said Tuesday.

The director of intelligence at U.S. Cyber Command, Rear Adm. Samuel Cox, said that cyberattacks can do significant harm to a country's infrastructure and should never be carried out in a cavalier manner. Offensive cyber operations are difficult to conduct with precision to avoid unintended casualties and damage to unrelated systems, he said.

"If you're trying to do precision strike in cyberspace with a very high degree of confidence," Cox said, "that takes enormous amounts of intelligence, planning, great care and very carefully crafted cyber tools that won't boomerang against you down the road."

Cox also downplayed the prospect that an enemy of the United States could completely disable the nation's electric power grid or shut down the Internet because these systems are designed to withstand severe cyberattacks.

"There's huge amounts of resiliency and redundancy built into the system nowadays that makes that kind of catastrophic thing very difficult," he said.

Cyber Command is in charge of defending U.S. military networks from attacks and intrusions. The command's top officer, Army Gen. Keith Alexander, also is the director of the secretive National Security Agency, which gathers electronic intelligence from foreign governments. Both NSA and Cyber Command are headquartered at Fort Meade, Md.

The Defense Department is developing rules of engagement for how commanders will operate in cyberspace and what missions they can conduct under their own authority.

Gov't says transgender people protected under law

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a first-of-its-kind ruling, the government says transgender people are protected under federal employment discrimination laws.

The decision from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission late last week says employers cannot discriminate on the basis of gender identity.

The case involved a California woman who claimed she was denied a contractor job with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives after the contractor learned she had undergone a procedure to change her gender from a man to a woman.

An EEOC spokeswoman says the unanimous ruling from the five-member agency does not create a new cause of action. It clarifies that charges of gender stereotyping are considered claims of sex discrimination under existing law.

We would like to thank David Nicholas, Administrator of the estate and all the Homer B. Nicholas heirs for all of their help and cooperation throughout the auction process.

"Our marketing and advertising campaign was very successful in bringing all bidders together at one time and place which created a pressurized high demand bidding contest for all tracts," said Billy Frank Harned, Auctioneer. "Demand for agricultural properties in Larue and surrounding counties is still very strong." This is a wonderful example of Nelson, Larue and Hardin County sales we've had that the results have been outstanding! If you've been thinking of selling your property, this may be your best opportunity to receive top prices for your land. Seize the opportunity of low interest rates and the demand for high quality farms in your area. thought.

"You can't really tell whether you hit one or not," Moore said.

Moore said it was more difficult than he expected.

"I've never driven drunk so I wouldn't know," he said.

Ayaat Ismail rode with Moore while he took his turn on the course. Ismail said watching Moore drive made it clear how much a person's driving can be affected by visual impairment of drinking.

Snow said she likes that the program allows Bryce Shumate with RPD to spend individual time with students while they drive through the course. Shumate also has students try texting while driving to experience those challenges. It's enjoyable for students, too.

"It's a fun experience in a positive way," she said.

second-degree persistent felony offender. She is being represented by public defender Melanie Foote.

As Johnson's babysitter pleaded not guilty to the murder charge, a row of the toddler's family members observed from seats in the gallery.

Circuit Judge Ken Howard set a pretrial conference for 1 p.m. Aug. 6. A jury trial is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. Jan. 14.

Police said while Chapman was taking care of the child at her Cedar Oak Drive home, she struck and shook the toddler, causing "loss of consciousness, extensive bruising, bleeding in the brain and a bite mark."

The indictment said Chapman "wantonly" and with "extreme indifference" inflicted serious physical injuries to the child "creating a grave risk of death" and ultimately

"failed to seek medical attention," all of which caused the child's death.

Norman Chaffins, public affairs officer at Kentucky State Police Post 4 in Elizabethtown, previously said Chapman was a private sitter who was taking care of Johnson while her parents were at work. The toddler was the only child in Chapman's care at the time.

On Tuesday, Chaffins said the sitter previously worked at Jack & Jill Child Care & Preschool in Radcliff, though she was not employed at the time of the alleged offense. The family-owned daycare no longer is in operation.

Chapman has been in custody since her Jan. 26 arrest. Although she is under a $500,000 cash bond in Hardin County, she's being held without bond in Daviess County as a state inmate for felony probation violations.

Court records reveal Chapman was on probation when police filed the new charges.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF

OBAMA TELLS STUDENTS HE AND FIRST LADY HAVE BEEN IN THEIR SHOES, FACED COLLEGE LOAN DEBTS. President Barack Obama went after the college vote Tuesday, pitching cheaper student loans as he courted the one age group where he has a decided advantage over Republican rival Mitt Romney. The twist? Romney, too, has endorsed the idea, though it's unclear whether deficit-leery Republicans in Congress will go along.

In the race for the White House, both the Obama and Romney campaigns see huge opportunities to court younger voters. This week, their efforts are focused on the millions of students — and their parents — who are grappling with college costs at a time when such debt has grown so staggering it exceeds the totals for credit cards or auto loans.

Trying to make it personal, Obama told students at the University of North Carolina that he and first lady Michelle Obama had "been in your shoes" and didn't pay off their student loans until eight years ago.

"I didn't just read about this. I didn't just get some talking points about this. I didn't just get a policy briefing on this," Obama said. "We didn't come from wealthy families. When we graduated from college and law school, we had a mountain of debt. When we married, we got poor together."

Obama's experience set up a contrast with Romney, whose father was a wealthy auto executive. It's a point the president is sure to return to during this summer's campaign-ing.

GOP PULLS ITS BUDGET PUNCHES AS FOLLOW UP LEGISLATION ADVANCES ON CAPITOL HILL. Republicans controlling the House are opting for the politically safe route as they follow up their tightfisted, tea party-driven budget with less controversial steps to cut spending.

Instead of big reductions in Medicaid and Medicare, top GOP lawmakers are sticking mostly with familiar proposals like cutting money for President Barack Obama's health care overhaul and federal employee pensions while reaching out to Democrats to help pass annual spending bills.

At issue is follow-up legislation to the sweeping budget document that passed the House last month. Under Congress' arcane budget process, it's simply a nonbinding blueprint that sets the terms for follow-up legislation.

The broader GOP plan, by Budget Committee Chairman Paul

Ryan, R-Wis., also calls for cutting day-to-day operating budgets for domestic agencies $19 billion below last summer's bipartisan budget and debt deal.

Republicans backed the Ryan plan last month as a first step in tackling out of control deficits. It's also a campaign document that casts in stark relief differences between Republicans and Democrats on deficits with an election little more than six months away.

SYRIAN TROOPS SHELL DAMASCUS SUBURB; SPECIAL ENVOY'S OFFICE SAYS HEAVY WEAPONS NOT WITHDRAWN.

Syrian troops heavily shelled a suburb of the capital Tuesday, and satellite imagery showed that Syria has failed to withdraw all of its heavy weapons from populated areas as required by a cease-fire deal, an official said.

The shelling came hours after rebels seeking to topple President Bashar Assad killed three regime officers in separate attacks around Damascus, activists and state media said, the latest violence targeting the security forces used by the government to quash dissent.

A bomb hidden in an army truck also exploded in the capital, wounding several people.

RATES: Ashlock proposed rates rise incrementally again in 2007 – in the past 30 years, according to Finance Director Steve Park.

Previous rates allowed the city to build up a “war chest” of reserve money, Park said, but those reserves rapidly are depleting. He said Tuesday the city had about $1 million in sewer and water reserve funds for day-to-day expenses and another $2.7 million in depreciation money used to cover construction expenses on capital projects.

“None of it has been subsidized by tax dollars,” Park said. “We don’t do that.”

The proposed increases in rates would take a minimum monthly bill of 2,000 gallons of water from $8 to $12.80 while the minimum bill for sewer would rise from $6 to $10 on the first 2,000 gallons used, according to HDR.

Sewer rates for anything more than 2,000 gallons would increase from $2.40 per 1,000 gallons to $4.40 per 1,000 gallons under the proposal. Water rates are tiered after the first 2,000 gallons of monthly use.

Councilman Larry Ashlock said he would not vote for such large increases and instead recommended the city establish a defined rate structure in which smaller rate increases would kick in annually.

Ashlock said the ordinance would not bind future councils and could be designed to halt the increase if revenues exceeded expenditures in a particular year.

Rates determined by HDR were based on a five-year outlook stretching to the 2016-17 fiscal year, when the company estimates the city will have about $5 million of annual water expenses and $6 million or more in annual sewer expenses. The firm looked at water and sewer revenues and expenses, debt service and annual water use as factors in making its determination.

The company said the city’s annual water usage has declined, which is in line with other cities statewide because of the recession.

“Everyone is just being more frugal,” said Charles R. Scroggin, senior vice president of HDR Engineers.

P. Benton Hanson, project manager of HDR, said some businesses and homes also have installed fixtures that use less water since the recession hit.

In 2008, the city had about $6.4 million in billed sales for water and sewer with an income of more than $200,000, but in 2009 the number of sales had declined to $5.9 million with a deficit of more than $650,000, Park said.

The decline continued in 2010 at $5.8 million in billed sales while the deficit for the year surged past $700,000, he said. In 2011, Park said, the city’s billed sales for water and sewer were $6.4 million, but the deficit exceeded $1 million.

Ashlock criticized the studies and said HDR was trying to use a “crystal ball” to predict the future. He said he would rather see hard numbers to determine how “in the red” the city’s sewer and water utilities are.

“I don’t like these studies because they’re a waste of money,” he said.

But Park said the study is a conservative estimate of what likely will happen based on recent trends and indicates what he has been warning the city about.

Park said he has recommended increases for years but the city has failed to act on those suggestions – an assertion the council confirmed as they said they had ignored Park’s concerns.

“I’ve been screaming for water rate increases for the last five years, so I can’t answer that question,” Park said.

Mayor Tim Walker said the sewer study was required as part of the city’s loan through the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority. Money from that loan will pay for several wastewater projects, including improvements on Poplar Drive and Hawkins Drive. The city pursued the loan to expand its wastewater treatment plant, but a state grant for the Base Realignment and Closure Initiative at Fort Knox covered most of the expansion’s costs.

The new debt service accrued from the loan, which totals more than $20 million, is another reason rate increases are needed, Park told the council. If the council wants to complete projects, he said, it has to be willing to pay for them.

Walker said the city is in an unenviable position but must act.

“We’ve kicked the can down the road until we’ve kicked it against the wall,” he said.

Girl’s mom seeks restraining order against student

By BRUCE SCHREINER
The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE – A Kentucky mother who claims her 9-year-old daughter has been bullied for two school years is seeking a restraining order against a fourth-grade boy she accused of tormenting her daughter, kicking her in the chest and chasing her with scissors.

Joy Furman, the girl’s mother, wants the boy to stay at least 500 feet away from her daughter. The children are classmates at Stephen Foster Traditional Academy in Louisville.

The bullying began last year when the children were third graders and has continued as they shared the same classroom as fourth graders, Ted Gordon, the woman’s attorney, said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

“It’s late in the school year, but she’s entitled to a pleasant May,” Gordon said of the girl. “She’s gone through hell the last eight months.”

The boy weighs about twice as much as the girl, he added.

Bruins drop North Hardin, 6-2

By CHUCK JONES

cjones@thenewsenterprise.com

The little things can make a big difference.

The Central Hardin Bruins played flawless defense behind pitchers Josh Krupinski and Drew Harrington and they took advantage of their scoring chances Tuesday to post a 6-2 victory over the North Hardin Trojans in a 17th District game at James R. Aldridge Field.

"It takes a lot of pressure off your pitchers when you can play defense like that," Central Hardin junior shortstop Troy Squires said. "Josh pitched a heckuva game and Drew did a good job. Josh didn't strike many out, but when you play good defense, pitchers can throw strikes and just pitch to contact."

The solid defensive effort helped Central Hardin lock up at least a share of the regular-season district championship. The Bruins (18-4 overall) are 6-0 in district play this season and they own a two-game lead over Elizabethtown. They ran their winning streak against district foes to 23.

Freyberger tosses two-hitter in 5-0 victory

By JOSH CLAYWELL

jclaywell@thenewsenterprise.com

One of Austin Freyberger's teammates broke one of baseball's unwritten rules: never talk to a pitcher who's throwing a no-hitter.

Before Freyberger took the mound for the fourth inning, sophomore teammate Conner Kindred mentioned the no-hit bid.

Whoops.

Freyberger took the no-hit bid into the fourth and wound up settling for a two-hit shutout as he led the Elizabethtown Panthers to a 5-0 win Tuesday over 17th District rival John Hardin.

"My friend Conner jinxed me in the dugout before they got their first hit," Freyberger said. "He said 'You're throwing a no-hitter out there.' I felt good the whole game."

Latos gets first win in Reds' rout of Giants

By JOE KAY

AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — Mat Latos finally got his first win for Cincinnati, pitching seven shutout innings against an old NL West nemesis, and Brandon Phillips homered and drove in three runs Tuesday night, leading the Reds to a 9-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Latos (1-2) came to the Reds in a four-player deal with San Diego and acknowledged trying too hard to impress his new team. He was back on his game against the Giants, allowing only four singles.

Phillips hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Matt Cain (1-1) after being called out on a foul tip. The umpires decided the tipped ball hit the dirt, giving him another swing.

The Giants have lost six straight and 11-of-15 at Great American Ball Park.

Pablo Sandoval singled in his final at-bat, leaving him with a hit in each of the Giants' 17 games. It's the second-longest hitting streak to open a season in franchise history, one behind Johnny Rucker of the 1945 New York Giants.

Buster Posey hit a two-run homer in the ninth after Cincinnati's Sam LeCure threw a pitch inside, drawing a warning to both benches. Cincinnati's Joey Votto was hit in the seventh.

Cain was in one of the best stretches of his career when he loosened up on a cool, breezy evening in Cincinnati. The right-hander had thrown 18 shutout innings in his last two starts, two innings shy of his career best. In those two starts, only four runners reached base.

A foul tip led to the end of his scoreless streak.

Drew Stubbs doubled in the first inning. Phillips worked the count to 2-2, then tipped a pitch that Posey caught off the dirt. Plate umpire Vic Carapazza called Phillips out, but first base umpire Gerry Davis indicated that the foul tip hit the ground before reaching the catcher's mitt.

Given the reprieve, Phillips homered to center on the next pitch.

Instead of having a quick, scoreless inning, Cain wound up throwing 38 pitches in the first. He got into a rhythm after that inning. Ryan Ludwick hit a solo homer off him in the seventh, when the Reds batted around for six runs.

Lady Bruins zip past North

Five-run first inning propels Central in 10-2 win

By NATHANIEL BRYAN

nbryan@thenewsenterprise.com

Central Hardin sped out of the dock Tuesday night and then went for a cruise against the North Hardin Trojans.

Five of the Lady Bruins' eight hits came in their five-run first inning as No. 18 Central Hardin beat the makeshift Trojans, 10-2 to take over sole possession of first place in the 17th District softball standings.

Just 14 pitches into the bottom of the first, the Lady Bruins (15-7 overall, 4-0 district) had reeled off five consecutive hits to score three runs. They tacked on the fourth run on the first of five errors made by North Hardin (6-10, 3-1) and another on a groundout by freshman designated player Kailey Martin.

"Sometimes it's good to get off to a hot start, but good teams need to be able to carry it over throughout the game," said Central Hardin freshman shortstop Kelsey McGuffin, who went 2-for-3 with a home run, double, four RBIs, three runs scored and a stolen base. "So we didn't have our best game, but we didn't have our worst one, either."

With an explosive inning like that, it looked like Central Hardin could make things worse for the Trojans. Instead, North Hardin freshman Bailey Blair (6-9) buckled down and limited the Lady Bruins to just three hits in 27 plate appearances the rest of the game.

"I think we kind of went on cruise control there after the first, but (Blair) had a lot to do with that because of her pitching," said Central Hardin coach Jamie Goodman, who is 12-0 against 5th Region competition since taking over before the final game of the 2011 regular season.

North Hardin, which had scored no more than one run in any of the teams' five previous meetings, warmed up offensively as the night grew colder. After having just one runner reach scoring position in the first four innings, the Trojans got on a roll in the fifth.

"April (Pence) did a real good job of keeping the ball down for the most part," Goodman said of his sophomore pitcher, who moved to 10-3 and struck out five. "She had one bad inning (the fifth) in which she left the ball up and she knows that if you leave the ball up, bad things can happen."

Vikings move toward signing Simpson

By DAVE CAMPBELL
AP Sports Writer

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — The Minnesota Vikings have taken steps toward adding free agent Jerome Simpson, the former Cincinnati Bengals wide receiver with a felony drug conviction and what general manager Rick Spielman called “freak-type” athleticism.

Spielman confirmed Tuesday the interest in Simpson, who visited the team last week. Fox Sports first reported that Simpson has agreed to terms on a contract with the Vikings, but Spielman declined to acknowledge a deal.

Simpson was sentenced April 5 to 15 days in jail, three years of probation and 200 hours of community service plus a $7,500 fine and court costs. He pleaded guilty March 1 to a prohibited act relating to controlled substances. Authorities said they tracked a shipment of 2½ pounds of marijuana to his Kentucky home in September and that they found another pound of the drug inside the house.

“We did a lot of research,” Spielman said. “I think you guys know us well enough now that we have had success with guys with character issues that have come into this organization and have been very productive, not only on the field but as citizens.”

Vikings head coach Leslie Frazier invited a handful of players to have lunch with Simpson during his visit.

“Every person we talked to stood by the kid’s character,” Spielman said. “Not standing by the mistake he made, but by what this kid’s character is and we saw that when we brought him in here on a visit.”

ESPN reported, citing an unidentified NFL source, that Simpson will be suspended for three games under the league’s substance abuse policy. But even 13 games with Simpson would be a boost to the team’s depleted group of receivers. Percy Harvin had a career year, but he’s not an outside, stretch-the-field deep threat. Michael Jenkins is reliable, but he’s not a game-changing target.

Simpson played sparingly his first three seasons in the league after he was drafted in the second round out of Coastal Carolina, but last year was his breakout. He caught 50 passes for 725 yards and four touchdowns, including the head-over-heels flip into the end zone on Christmas Eve that played on highlight clips all over the country. Simpson vaulted over an Arizona linebacker just in front of the goal line and landed on his feet in the end zone during Cincinnati’s victory that day.

“If we feel that comfortable enough that we think this kid has matured or learned from his mistakes regardless of who it is, then we’ll go ahead and say hey, ‘This guy deserves a second chance,’” Spielman said. “And to sit here and tell you that we’re going to be 100 percent right all the time, I’m not going to do that. But I know if we do bring a player in, the ownership understands and I think that the people in the building understand and you guys should understand that we did everything possible in our due diligence to make sure that we felt comfortable enough to sign a player.”

Simpson was initially indicted on a felony charge of marijuana trafficking, but his plea agreement changed the charge. At his sentencing in Kenton County Circuit Court in Kentucky, he told the judge he takes “full responsibility” for his actions and that he thinks the situation has made him “a better person.” Both the prosecutor and the judge in that case said that they didn’t believe Simpson was trafficking in marijuana but that it was for the use of him and probably his friends.

Tubby’s contract status still up in air

By DAVE CAMPBELL
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — As Virginia Commonwealth’s athletic director, Norwood Teague helped raise money for a new $10 million practice facility, saw the Rams reach the Final Four for the first time in program history and persuaded sought-after coach Shaka Smart to stay put.

That’s a lot of success at a mid-major school, or any place for that matter. Well, Teague will have to keep up the hard work at Minnesota: There are plenty of men’s basketball issues that need his attention.

First, there is the contract status of head coach Tubby Smith, who hasn’t won an NCAA Tournament game at Minnesota and is 38-52 in the Big Ten Conference in five seasons. Smith has two years remaining on his original deal, which pays him $1.8 million annually, and representatives for the school and Smith have not reached agreement on an extension, which was first broached after last season.

Then there is the lack of a specific practice facility.

“We’re in the Big Ten, and we’ve got to have facilities that are Big Ten facilities,” Teague said. “So in the next years to come, it’s going to be important that we raise money.”

This is an issue in Smith’s contract talks, but it’s also a factor in the direction of the program, which was ravaged by an academic fraud scandal in 1999 and hasn’t been able to sustain any success since a Final Four appearance in 1997.

“We shouldn’t be the last school in the Big Ten with a practice facility. If anything we should have been the first,” Smith said Monday after Teague was introduced. “But I think he is a guy that can sell that dream. He’s done it before.”

The relationship between Teague and Smith will be critical for the future of the Gophers and Smith — who will turn 61 this year — was beaming about his new boss. Smith was an assistant coach at VCU from 1979-86, long before Teague arrived, but they’ve already met.

Door opens for Smith to coach Razorbacks

By KURT VOIGT
AP Sports Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — John L. Smith stood at the podium, pouncing with a smile on every question he was asked about his surprise hire as the coach at Arkansas.

The guy asked to pick up the pieces following the scandal-tainted ouster of Bobby Petrino handled everything thrown his way and was adamant Tuesday about keeping Arkansas in the thick of the Southeastern Conference and national championship races.

“I want to say that our expectations are the same,” Smith said at his introductory news conference with a handful of players watching nearby. “Nothing is going to slow down. In fact, we’re going to speed up. Our expectations are that we’re going to battle and fight for a national title.”

Those unfamiliar with Smith’s ebullient personality, and those used to Petrino’s low-key ways, quickly discovered that times have definitely changed in Fayetteville.

The 63-year-old Smith, who was an assistant for Arkansas the last three seasons under Petrino, is back after leaving the school in December to become the head coach at Weber State. He returns to a program that finished No. 5 last season and has even higher goals in the fall.

It’s a program now led by the sometimes quirky and outgoing Smith, known as much for his adrenaline-seeking ways as for head coaching stints at Michigan State and Louisville, among others over 18 years. He’s run with the bulls in Spain, climbed Mount Kilimanjaro and loves to skydive.

Smith, who signed a 10-month, $850,000 contract that will allow athletic director Jeff Long to reassess Arkansas’ coaching situation after next season, said he hasn’t been skydiving in a couple of years. He said the decision to leave his alma mater after five months without coaching a game required a similar leap of faith, one made easier by his familiarity with the Razorbacks’ coaching staff and players.

“I guess I’ve always kind of been that way, to a degree,” Smith said. “If there’s a door open, walk through it. If there’s a window, jump out of it. It’s like my wife (Diana) said, ‘This is just another one of your adventures.’”

Smith replaces Petrino, who once replaced Smith at Louisville after the 2002 season. The two have worked together on four different coaching stints in their careers, but Smith said he hasn’t talked with the former Arkansas coach since he was fired April 10 for not disclosing his affair with a woman, Jessica Dorrell, he later hired as his assistant. Dorrell has resigned.

Smith has a 132-86 record as a head coach, including stops at Michigan State, Louisville, Idaho and Utah State. Long said he hadn’t considered bringing Smith back as head coach until assistant athletic director Jon Fagg told him Smith had contacted the school with interest.

Smith said leaving Weber State was “one of the toughest decisions of my life.” After nearly two weeks of searching for a solution, Long finally made up his mind to go with Smith on Sunday night.

HORSE RACING

Baffert, Bodemeister work out for Kentucky Derby

By COLIN FLY
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE — Trainer Bob Baffert said jokingly that he better hurry up and talk before he keeled over.

His heart attack was no laughing matter last month when he thought he was dying in Dubai. He's changed his routine in the weeks since.

That means medication, a new workout regimen that included a walk on the treadmill at 6 a.m. Tuesday morning and slowing down just enough to enjoy the work he's put into a Hall of Fame career.

"I've got to redo, change my lifestyle for the best," Baffert said. "I've got to take care of myself like I take care of my horses."

The 59-year-old Baffert watched Arkansas Derby winner Bodemeister work five furlongs in just over a minute in preparation for the Kentucky Derby on May 5 and came away impressed.

"I feel relieved. Bode(meister) worked really well. He looked like he skipped right over the track and you never know until you work them over how they're going to handle it but he seemed like he was really fluid the way he went around there," Baffert said. "That's him, when you let him pick it up, he really just floats over the ground."

The horse named after Baffert's 7-year-old son,

Bode, clocked splits of 12.80, 25, 36.80 and 48.80 and finished at 1:00.80. It was the third fastest time of 23 horses Tuesday.

Bodemeister did not race until this season, but his 3-year-old campaign has been building momentum.

"I just took my time with him," Baffert said. "He was just immature. I wasn't in a big hurry with him, so I'm glad I did. It made him a better horse."

The bay colt bred by Audley Farm in Virginia and sired by Empire Maker has finished either first or second in all four of his races, none more impressive than his runaway 9½ lengths win at the Arkansas Derby on April 14.

Bodemeister's win was the most definitive moment of a Derby season so far that's been muddled with uneven performances and a group of highly touted horses that have done little to separate themselves. Baffert said Bodemeister has a "ways to go" but was encouraged with the performance coming off the dominating victory in Arkansas.

"He just went around there and just kept finding gears," Baffert said. "You never know if they can run a mile and an eighth until they do it. The thing is, we've got to keep him healthy and we've got a ways to go, but what I saw today was very encouraging. He worked really well." It's been an encouraging recovery for Baffert, too, after he was wheeled into a hospital in Dubai believing he was going to die before surgery to put three stents into two arteries. Baffert, who was headed to the World Cup, wasn't feeling well on the long flight to the United Arab Emirates, and was tired after visiting the barn and arriving at the hotel.

He fell ill the next day, and his wife's urged him to go to the hospital.

"When they were carting me in there, I thought, 'I can't believe everything I've done in my life, here, I'm having a heart attack and it's all going to end in Dubai,'" Baffert said. "After it was over, I felt like man, I just, I got a second chance here. ... It was just a weird scare."

It was also a surreal scene while he spent a week in the hospital before the 16-hour trip home.

Dubai's ruler Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid al Maktoum was alerted and visited Baffert. The sheikh owns Darley Stud and Godolphin racing, one of world's leading thoroughbred breeding and racing operations.

"That was pretty cool," Baffert said of the ruler's visit.

The affable Baffert has had to make one other major change — he's been told to rest more leading up to horse racing's peak season.

GARRY JONES/The Associated Press
Kentucky Derby hopeful Bodemeister, under exercise rider Peter Hutton, tunes up on the track at Churchill Downs in Louisville on Tuesday.

"I'm tired. They have me on a lot of medication, so it gets me a little tired," Baffert said. "I'll be talking then my voice goes down. That's why I don't like to do too much talking."

Still, he's grateful that he has another opportunity and said he's lucky for the chance to work with Bodemeister.

"It's good to be here with really nice horses. It's not fun if you have a horse that's a super longshot or something like that. This is what we do," Baffert said. "Bodemeister, what he did in the Arkansas, if he can repeat that, it puts him right there into play. I'll just take one step at a time, one day at a time."

CENTRAL: clinches at least a share of district

"We played all right," Central Hardin senior right fielder Derek Westerfield said. "We left too many on base. We have to come through with the bases loaded. The hitting will come, though. The strength of our team right now is our pitching and defense."

Krupinski, a sophomore right-hander, had a no-hitter through 3 2/3 before allowing a single to sophomore Graham Mathews. He limited North Hardin to three hits and one walk, while striking out six to earn his fifth win in six decisions.

Harrington tossed 2 1/3 shutout innings to pick up his second save. He didn't allow a hit, walked two and hit one batter while striking out five of the 10 batters he faced.

"I just threw Friday so I got a little tired in the fifth," Krupinski said. "I just kept them off balance by mixing in my off-speed pitches and keeping the ball low. It's a lot easier to pitch when you have a defense like that. You're not worrying about making errors behind me."

North Hardin (14-8, 2-4) wasted a good outing from junior Aaron Jones. He gave up five hits, six walks and one hit batsman in 5 1/3 innings. Of the six run he allowed, only three were earned as the Trojans made three errors behind Jones.

"We kicked the ball around," North Hardin coach Ace Adcock said. "I think it's our youth. We're going to keep working on it and we'll get better. The last three or four weeks, we've gotten better."

The Bruins took a 1-0 lead in the third when Squires singled and moved to second on senior Cannon Ray's sacrifice bunt. Harrington followed with an RBI single to center.

With two outs in the fourth, junior Alex Crowder reached on an error to allow sophomore Troy Riggs to score from second. Squires delivered a double off the fence in right to bring in Crowder, who was running on the pitch.

Harrington reached on an error and Westerfield singled to start the fifth. With two outs, Riggs ripped a run-scoring single to left to stretch the lead to 4-0.

"We took advantage of some of our opportunities," Central Hardin coach Todd Thompson said. "I'm just happy to get out of here with a win. District games are always tough and this one was intense."

"Josh threw really well," he added. "Defensively we played real well. I'm extremely pleased with how we played in the field."

The Trojans, who lost for the 13th consecutive time to Central Hardin, finally got to Krupinski in the fifth. With two outs, junior Jamaal Wilson walked and then Patterson smacked a two-run homer to right to cut the Bruins' lead to 4-2. Senior Andrew Boyles followed with a single, but Harrington came on to strike out senior Antonio Simmons on a check swing.

Central Hardin answered in the sixth even though the Bruins didn't get a hit. They used four walks and one hit batter to extend the lead to 6-2.

"It wasn't our best game," Squires said. "We did score on a couple of our chances, but we didn't take advantage of a couple others. But the hits will come. It's just good to get a win."

Adcock said the Trojans must continue to work to eliminate the defensive mistakes and cut down on walks and hit batters.

"In seven innings, the leadoff guy gets on base seven times," Adcock said. "We give up 10 free passes, eight walks and we hit two batters. We made some mistakes in the field. Still, I felt good to be in the situation we were. It was 4-2 and we had the tying run at the plate. I thought we competed our tails off. We didn't play our best baseball."

ELIZABETHTOWN: has won 5-of-7 games

Even though he didn't get the no-hitter, Freyberger and the Panthers can't be disappointed with how he pitched against the Bulldogs.

Freyberger, who won his fifth decision, kept John Hardin's offense in check after the Bulldogs (11-10 overall, 2-2 in district) scored 15 runs in a loss to Nelson County on Monday.

Freyberger (5-3) gave up just two singles and one walk with six strikeouts to out-duel John Hardin sophomore right-hander Dale Gumm, who lost his first decision this season.

"It's a big game and we needed him to step up, and he did that," said Elizabethtown coach Don Pitts. "He didn't throw a lot of pitches and he was keeping the ball down. He pitched the way he has been the last three weeks."

Unlike Freyberger, it took Elizabethtown (8-12, 4-2) a while to get going.

After scoring one run in the first, Gumm shut the Panthers down — limiting them to six base runners and three hits through the next five innings. Gumm (5-1) finished with eight strikeouts. He allowed eight hits, four walks and five runs — one earned.

"Dale had his curveball working really well," said Elizabethtown senior Tyler Brandenburg, who was hitless in his first three at-bats against Gumm. "We just needed to be more relaxed at the plate. He was keeping us off-balance. He's a good pitcher."

The Panthers finally broke through in the seventh. Freshmen Cody Bridges and Zeke Pinkham had back-to-back singles with one out. Following a strikeout and a fielding error, Brandenburg lined a pitch to the outfield to score Bridges and Pinkham.

"I just put it in play to be honest," Brandenburg said. "We had the bases loaded, so I wanted to put it on the ground and see what happens."

Senior Ryne Kauffeld, who struck out in his first three plate appearances, followed with a two-run double to increase Elizabethtown's lead to 5-0.

If not for the error that extended the inning, John Hardin coach Greg Gumm believes his team would've had a chance to come back in the bottom half.

Instead, the Bulldogs dropped their seventh straight.

"... I thought Dale pitched really well," Greg Gumm said. "He got in trouble in the first inning but settled down. He had given up two hits going into the seventh and we were going to get out of it with nobody scoring, but we make an error in the field and next thing you know it's a 5-0 game."

"We wanted to keep the game at 1-0, come in and take our chances and see if we could pick up one in the bottom of the seventh," he added. "You've always got a better chance if you're down one instead of five. But Freyberger pitched a good game, and they've gotten a lot better as the year has gone along."

Indeed the Panthers have. Since a 3-10 start, Elizabethtown has won 5-of-7 — including 4-of-5 district games.

"We caught some breaks," Pitts said. "We hit a couple balls in the infield that they didn't make a play on and we beat out. Sometimes that's what it takes in a game like this, is to catch a few breaks. Baseball is like that. It's a game of breaks, and we got more than John Hardin did tonight."

The Bulldogs appeared to be heading in the right direction as they won five straight games earlier this month. But they've been held to two runs or less in three of their last seven games.

"It's really frustrating because we've been hitting the ball really well," Greg Gumm said. "One day we'll hit it really well and throw it everywhere, and the next day we'll have pitching but not hitting. Right now we're struggling to put a whole game together."

LADY BRUINS: take over first in district the ball home to eighth-grade catcher Mariah Bryant, who blocked the plate and tagged out the runner.

Bryant also hooked up with McGuffin to keep North Hardin from stealing second in the third and Lasley, McGuffin and senior first baseman Wesley Edwards turned a 6-4-3 double play after North Hardin had gotten the leadoff runner on in the sixth.

"My defense is very good and they practice hard every day and they know where the ball needs to go," Pence said.

With senior right fielder Sam Atkins and freshman second baseman Cady Wilson out of the lineup for various reasons, the Trojans had a different look. Rainwater took over at first base for junior Brittanie Mahanna, who switched to designated player. Sophomore Ashley Vasquez, returning from a hip flexor injury, replaced Wilson and she was eventually replaced by freshman Kristen Moreland. Ferguson took over Vasquez's usual spot at short and junior Ariana Martinez started in right field for Atkins.

Even with the continuity and chemistry in flummox, veteran North Hardin coach Donnie Baker said the team's defensive issues could have been fixed with aggressiveness.

"We just made some mental errors," he said. "We have to go for the ball. When Texas Leaguers drop in like that and we're not getting a glove on it, those are the types of plays that we need to make."

Answer:

(Answers tomorrow)

Yesterday's Jumbles: STUNT OPERA GOVERN ATTEST
Answer: Building such a long wall in China was this for the construction crew — NOT SO GREAT

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

How free are these eggs?

HINTS FROM HELOISE

TASTY OATMEAL. Dear Heloise: As I sit here eating my hot bowl of oatmeal, I recall a school morning when my kids were little. I prepared oatmeal, but we were out of milk. I found that a scoop of vanilla ice cream was a wonderful treat on hot oatmeal. It was delicious, and I still enjoy it now and then when I am not counting calories. Thank you for all your simple and practical hints. — Jane from Texas

SURPRISE MEATLOAF. Dear Heloise: My wife, Kim, worked as a nanny for more than 20 years. One of the families she worked for would make an unusual meatloaf. They'd take out a pound of hamburger and put it in a mixing bowl. Then they'd open up the fridge and start grabbing leftovers like rice, barley, veggies, an egg or two, and anything else that they could find, dumped it all in and mixed well. All this was then cooked up as meatloaf.

The first time Kim made meatloaf this way, I thought she had totally lost it. I had to eat some humble pie, because the meatloaf turned out really good. — Kevin from North Carolina

■ Kevin, you never know when crazy-sounding ingredients will work together and taste just fine.

BASIC BUTTERMILK. Dear Heloise: I love your column and read it daily in the (Warren, Ohio) Tribune Chronicle. I have a hint to share. When I need buttermilk for a recipe, instead of buying a whole quart, I mix half sour cream and half milk. No leftover buttermilk to store. We always seem to use up the sour cream. This has not failed me yet, even in cake recipes. — Linda C., Howland, Ohio

CITRUS BAGS. Dear Heloise: With wonderful citrus in season now, I am buying it in plastic-net bags. When empty, I cut off the labeling and am left with a tube of plastic net. I turn each end inside the tube and twist a twisty around the middle. It looks like a puffy bow. It makes a wonderful scrubbie. — Carolyn in Kerrville, Texas

Write to Heloise at P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279-5000, or fax to (210) HEL-OISE. King Features Syndicate Inc.

Cash for Jewelry, Coins & Currency Roadshow

Spends Money with Local Residents This Week Only Elizabethtown Area.
Attendance has been Great.

By Sally Ferguson
Staff Writer

The Roadshow has had an enjoyable visit. Several visitors have cashed some unwanted attic finds for serious money. One local resident brought in some old currency from before 1900 and left with over $5,000. The family had handed down the bills, and some were in pretty good shape. Most visitors know that gold and silver coins are valuable regardless of their age. But Ben and Julie were really surprised when they brought a giant piggy bank in full of what they thought were common coins. Along with a dresser drawer full of costume jewelry and bag of non-running watches, Julie pocketed $1,843 dollars cash.

Gold has reached world record prices and silver markets have topped the 30 year charts.

The recent record prices have been associated with wealthy investors buying gold and silver, commodities trying to avoid the weak US dollar, and a slow recovering economy. There is no better time than now for you to gather up some of that broken jewelry and other precious metals. Starting at 10 am on today, the Cash for Jewelry, Coins & Currency Roadshow is setting up a convenient location. During the 4 day stay, local residents can bring in any costume jewelry, gold and silver jewelry, coins & older US Currency and turn them in for cash on the spot. Just about everybody has some amount of gold or silver just lying around. The staff will help sort costume jewelry, broken items and coins. Just bring it all. Do not leave the box of costume at home. Let the experts take a look. This week anybody can sell them direct to the collectors. They are here to spend cash, and shop for the enthusiastic collectors.

The Cash Roadshow visits cities around the country hosting 4 day events allowing the general public to take advantage of convenient locations. The response has been tremendous. The public who comes to the "cash it in" event are so pleased that they make another visit. The word of mouth travels fast between relatives and friends and neighbors. Local residents have been known to bring everything from small coin collections, large note currency in stacks, to large bags of old jewelry and watches that need sorted. Times are such that even the most secure family could use some extra spending cash. As the economy recovers these record prices are expected to go back down making this an important time to act now. If you have older United States currency and coins, it might be time to cash in. will be purchasing all types of old currency, silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free.

Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort, so bring everything. The quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors, the grade being higher makes the currency & coin worth more money. With the current gold and silver market, high prices are being paid for older coins too. Any dollar, half, quarter and dime coins minted in the US are more desirable. These automatically qualify if they are 1965 or older; halves need to be 1970 or older. Collectors warn, please do not try to clean or paint anything. This will decrease their value.
